

Musculus

Credits

Designer: Sidharth Gopisetty

Model: Delara Tehranchi

Photographers: Dominique Schleider, Cyprien Fasquelle & Megan Chen

- 800+ mussel shells hand sewn and collected locally
- Raw satin sculpted bodice
- Hand drilled and structured necklace

Inspired by the beauty of mussel shells found in the beaches of Half Moon Bay, only 30 minutes away from Stanford's campus.

I remember having spontaneous beach days with my friends and collecting mussel shells during walks and making jewelry out of them.

I wanted to make a dress out of these. A testament to both friendship and beauty found within items often considered ugly on the outside. I collected shells and prepped them in my dormitory bathroom and drilled holes in each one.

